Expenses row as MP claims for £20,000 city flat

By Dean Kilpatrick

dean.kilpatrick@archant.co.uk

POLITICAL pressure on MP Helen Grant shows no signs of slowing after she found herself embroiled in a row over expenses for a London flat.

It was revealed the junior minister claimed £20,000a-year for a flat in London as Maidstone is of sufficient distance from London to allow her to claim.

However, the equalities minister moved from her house in Marden after the 2010 election – living instead in a £1.8m house in Reigate – just 19 miles from Westminster. While not breaking any rules, critics say she is breaking "the spirit" of the rules on expenses.

Stuart Jeffery, the Green Party's opponent against Helen Grant in the 2010 General Election, has called for her resignation.

The MP's office denied any wrongdoing or breaching Independent Parliamentary Stardards Authority (IPSA) rules.

A statement read: "Mrs Grant's constituency has been deemed by IPSA to be a non-London constituency and she is therefore fully entitled to use her rental accommodation allowance either in London or in the constituency.

"When Mrs Grant is in the constituency she is able to stay with her mother who owns a property in Sutton Valance. so she sees no need to rent a further property there.

CHARITY

PEDALLING FOR PUDSEY

A BRAVE teenager has helped to raise more than £1 millon for Children in Need by following in the tracks of One Show presenter Matt Baker.

The BBC star raised £1.9m for the annual charity extravaganza last year by pedalling a rickshaw 484 miles from Edinburgh to London.

This year, a group of six youngsters - including carer James Trimmer, 18, from Lenham - took it in turns to ride the rickshaw 411 miles from Llandudno in North Wales to London.

And, with the help of Mr Baker who supported them on their journey, they managed to raise a massive £1,127,317 for Children in Need, with all money going to disadvantaged children and young people.

MEMORIAL

Half a century of remembrance commemorated with hall

VINTERS Park Crematorium celebrated its 50th anniversary last week with the opening of a new Book of Remembrance Hall.

At an event for funeral directors in the area to mark the occasion, Maidstone Borough Council cabinet member Cllr Marion Ring opened the new hall.

The crematorium is owned and managed by the council and opened in the autumn of 1962. Almost 84,000 cremations have since taken place there.

The chapel and main parts of the site remain mostly the same as they were 50 years ago but modernisations have taken place behind the scenes and within the grounds.

The Book of Remembrance Hall has the capacity to house three books of remembrance and mourners can now choose from a variety of memorials.

There are now eight areas where ashes can be strewn, as well as burial sites for ashes at the crematorium and the Sutton Road cemetery.

Cllr Marion Ring said: "We strive to ensure cremations are as pleasant an experience as they can be under the circumstances. By making the crematorium as pleasant a place as possible, and the booking of the cremation and the service running smoothly, we can ease the burden on families and friends of someone who has passed away. "The memorial areas and the new Book of Remembrance Hall are tranquil areas for remembrance and reflection and we're very proud of the staff at the crematorium and the facilities we provide."

PCC FLECTION

A Barnes-storming victory as Ann makes history in PCC election vote

Reporting team

Marijke Cox, Chrissie Daniels and Dean Kilpatrick

HISTORY was made this week with the election of Kent's first Police and Crime Commissioner.

As the results slowly trickled in from across the county's districts to Dover Town Hall, the message from the public was loud and clear: this role should not be political.

Every district saw independent Ann Barnes storm to victory in the first count of the supplementary vote system, with the former Kent Police Authority chair securing 45.9per cent of the overall vote.

Second in the race was Conservative Craig Mackinlay with 24.7per cent.

But with no-one reaching that all important 50 per cent mark, it went to a second count.

Before this was even a third of the way through, it was clear Mrs Barnes had secured victory.

While the nail-biting second count took place, she thanked her supporters.

"I'm so grateful for the warm support all my friends, supporters and my campaign team have given me," she said.

Speaking to KoS as the votes were counted, Mr Mackinlay said: "We are not getting the results we would have liked across the county.

"Turnout is lower than even we expected and that has been reflected elsewhere across the country.

"People did not know what the police authority did and as an election, people found it hard to engage.

"People seem to have leaned towards the independent message, however flawed it is.

"Politics and the police have always been intertwined.

Mr Mackinlay also commented on the low turnout, where just 16.3per cent of the electorate voted.

"We were surprised at how low local turnout was while out on foot yesterday," he said.

"When people get home and it's dark they're not going to go out and vote."

He added: "The real thing coming out of the results is the loss of Labour votes.

"This is a county they will need to form the next government.'

The election results saw Labour generally come third. Independent candidate Dai Liyanage failed to gain the support he had hoped for and Ukip's Piers Wauchope was unable to make much impact on the Tory vote. Mrs Barnes as PCC will be responsible for governing the local police force and holding the Chief Constable to account for the performance of Kent Police. She will have the power to hire and fire the Chief Constable, draw up and publish a police and crime plan, set the policing priorities and detail how and where money is spent.

Chief Constable Ian Learmonth will remain responsible for operational matters at Kent Police and Mrs Barnes will hold the force to account and "be the voice of the people".

She will pick up an £85,000 salary, hold a four year term and be able to recruit a team to work around her.

When Mrs Barnes announced her candidacy

FIRST LADY: Ann Barnes will be sworn in as PCC

earlier this year she said she would recruit a young person to be the Kent Police Youth Commissioner to be the eyes and ears of young people in the county.

The PCC's activities will be scrutinised by the Police and Crime Panel, made up of councillors from all the districts in Kent and a number of independent members.

They will have the power to veto decisions on the local precept and the appointmentof a new Chief Constable, but ultimately the PCC will hold the power over the majority of decisions.

Critics could now question whether the election of Mrs Barnes will effectively see the creation of just another policing authority staffed by the same people as the Kent Police Authority.

But chair of Kent Police Federation, Ian Pointon, who represents rank and file oficers, denied

"I think it will be very different to KPA," he

"The public - you, me - have been given the opportunity to directly elect somebody to oversee policing in the county.'

He said if the election had been held in May, when other local elections were on, there may have been a better turnout.

But the question is whether the turnout will be any better in 2016.

PARANORMAI

The Apeman Cometh: Spooky sighting in spa town ignites intrigue

By Chrissie Daniels

chrissie.daniels@archant.co.uk

YOU see some strange things in and around the county, but perhaps this could be the weirdest yet, after claims a British Bigfoot has been spotted in woodland near Tunbridge Wells.

Dubbed the Kentish Apeman, it is claimed he towers eight-foot tall, is covered in hair and has red demonic eyes.

And while that may sound like lots of people after a night on the town, what's intriguing many is the fact a recent sighting ties in with one nearly 70 years ago on the same spot.

The most recent sighting is believed to have taken place last month on Tunbridge Wells Common – the 200-acre wooded site which sits in the centre of the town and is one of its most picturesque features.

But after it was reported, it jogged the memory of another local resident who went online to reveal how it tallied closely with a story he had heard years ago.

The author, who billed themselves as Graham S from the town, revealed how when he was working as a painter in the house of an elderly lady, she regaled him with a tale of coming face to face with the apeman on the Common during World War Two.

The post read: "One particular day she went to the Common with her husband and was sitting on a bench when they became aware of a shuffling noise behind them.

Upon turning around both her husband and herself saw what she described as a tall, hairy ape like creature with eyes that were burning a reddish colour and it was moving towards them at a slow pace. They observed this creature for some time until they became afraid and they both fled - terrified.

and members of their family, thinking that a gorilla had escaped from a zoo, but were laughed at and were not believed.'

Sceptics may say the incidents could be down to a trick of the light, but Neil Arnold, a paranormal expert from Rochester, said he has received numerous reports of the apeman over the years.

One of the sightings took place in Dartford by a girl named Charlotte who was heading home in her car from the University of Kent. She said she saw a creature with long arms and knees which came up under its chin as it walked. She was so petrified she nearly crashed her car.

Other sightings, according to Mr Arnold, include five members of the Territorial Army in 1991 spotting the beast on Blue Bell Hill, near Maidstone, and throwing stones and shouting at it before running away.

Another sighting in Chatham by a young girl with her partner saw the apeman appear then run off into the bushes.

Mr Arnold, who doesn't believe the apeman to be a flesh and blood 'monster', but a paranormal figure, has also had reports from Maidstone and Hythe. In each example the figure appears the same and Mr Arnold said tales of an apeman date back decades.

He said: "It's a very touchy subject in the sense that these things are really not normal. I get some unusual reports. There have been reports all over England, but we can never prove something paranormal."

Mr Arnold said he believes the reports could be similar to folklore tales which described 'wild

He also compared the apeman to fictional children's character Stig of the Dump, which could have been inspired by a sighting as the author, Clive King, grew up in Kent.

FARMING

Fear EU reductions to financial aid for farmers could mean the end for rare plant and wildlife

POPULAR species of wild animals and plantlife could be put at risk of extinction amid fears Brussels could be about to slash financial hand-

For the last 25 years, farmers have been rewarded financially for making their land environmentally-friendly, with a view to protecting the environment and encouraging a rich diversity of wildlife. It has been credited with reversing population declines in a host of species.

But animal charity the RSPB says it fears EU grants could be reduced due to cost-cutting measures – and with it the erosion of the largest single fund for wildlife conservation in the UK.

A survey released on Friday revealed 96 per cent of farmers in the UK sav environmental work on their farms would be impacted if the so-called agri-environment schemes were stopped or funding reduced.

Current schemes include growing particular blends of nectar flowers to help produce food for insects, and creating banks to boost insect and spider numbers.

Prime Minister David Cameron is due to travel to Brussels later this month to talk to European leaders, with agriculture spending on the agenda.

The RSPB claims if cuts are made, it could put species like the turtle dove, tree sparrow, brown hare and rare plants and butterflies at

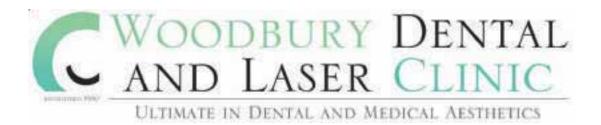

Now, in a bid to safeguard funds, the charity is urging people to write to Mr Cameron before his meeting with the European heads of state on November 22 and 23.

Gareth Harris, RSPB south east farmland conservation advisor, said: "We know that budgets are strained, but rewarding farmers for greater all-round environmental responsibility is excellent value for money, supporting farmland wildlife as well as improving water quality, land management and food production.

"The abundance of wildlife on these farms is simply an indicator of the health of the countryside."

Roland and Katrina Brown, from Heart's Delight Farm, Canterbury, said: "These schemes have been really successful, allowing wildlife-friendly management for the sustained periods that vulnerable target species often need to recover. A threat to this funding could be disastrous, as these hard-won gains could quickly be undone."

Animals feel the pain of recession as owners struggle with soaring bills

SPECIAL REPORT

By Dean Kilpatrick

dean.kilpatrick@archant.co.uk

PETS are increasingly becoming the victims of the economic slump as cash-strapped families are forced to give them up – only to put pressure on animal rescue centres which are struggling due to a drop in donations.

In a special report this week, we spoke to animal welfare groups across the county and were met with the same response; the situation is spiralling out of control.

Animal charities say they are facing pets being abandoned by owners who can't afford them. They include cats, dogs, horses and even reptiles.

The number of animals abandoned across the country has increased by 65 per cent over the last five years, and a number of centres in Kent have stopped taking in animals as they are inundated by struggling owners.

Yet they themselves are struggling to keep their heads above water as donations dwindle.

The Animal Samaritans is a national charity which looks to care for unwanted or neglected pets and offer support for owners.

The north west Kent branch, which covers Gravesend, Dartford, Medway and Maidstone, said it had seen a huge increase in the number of cats dumped.

Volunteer Valerie Croxford said: "We have had a bad year. Cats are being abandoned all over the place.

We had three kittens dumped in a wheelie bin; Heaven knows what would have happened had the dustbin lorry come

RSPCA

Nationally

Has launched an "urgent animal welfare crisis" appeal to foot the bill for the additional £5m it believes it will need to care for the estimated 6,000 cats and dogs which will be abandoned between now and the end of the year, across the UK.

along before they were found.

"We're not coping – we do not have enough volunteers to help and our current account is running low, so we have to be careful how to share our finances.

All species of animal are feeling the effects of the recession – but horses and cats are suffering the most, according to animal charities.

Centre manager at the RSPCA Thanet branch, Clive Martin, said cat owners were not neutering their cats as a result of shrinking family budgets, leading to a boom in kittens.

Cats can become pregnant as young as 12 weeks, and families are struggling to care for the extra paws.

Mr Martin said: "They are free to roam and to mate with other cats, and at the moment it's a real problem.

"We are seeing an increase because people can't afford day-to-day bills, such as feeding. People are more likely to spend £20 on food for the table rather than neutering their cat.'

And horses, which are the most expensive animals to look after as pets, are being dumped as a result of the recession by owners who haven't prepared for the costs of the winter. Horse

DUMPED: Cats are suffering, but all animals, including dogs, are affected owners need more feed, as well as winter jackets, during the cold period.

Canterbury Horse Rescue's Stella King, who has been working with animals for nearly 20 years, said it was the "worst she had ever seen", and urged people to think about the longterm welfare of their animals.

She said: "This is getting worse. This winter is going to be a hard one - I wish people would realise that the welfare of an animal is about affording to keep it after it's bought.'

And an Ashford group which used to look after and rehome unwanted reptiles as a hobby has had to stop due to a high level of demand which the finances could not keep up with.

South East Exotic Pet Rescue's Matt Lacey said: "We never got any assistance and it was just too expensive to run. There aren't many reptile places out there and we had so many people giving them in and just moving onto the next pet.

Take-off for £99 flights which provide gateway to host of global destinations

By Chrissie Daniels

chrissie.daniels@archant.co.uk

IT was one of the worst kept secrets in the travel industry, but this week a new service flying from Manston to Amsterdam was confirmed as tickets went on sale ahead of an April launch.

The route will be flown by Dutch national airline KLM, which is merged with Air France.

Tickets will cost either £99 or to begin trading abroad. £199 return and will provide users a 55-minute route to Schipol Aiport which, in turn, flies to more than 130 destinations, including the US. Asia and Africa.

The first flight will be on April 2. There will be two outbound and two inbound flights a day from Manston, with airline bosses not ruling out the possibility of more if demand is strong. It is hoped the service will be particularly popular in the county, providing an alternative to jaunts around the M25 to existing London airports.

The launch follows KLM confirming in September it was interested in running a service. An online survey attracted more than 9,000 responses and an overwhelmingly positive response.

However, observers will be cautiously optimistic given the plight of previous flights from the airport most notably the launch of services by EUjet which then went bust.

Henri Hourcade, general manager for Air France KLM in the UK, is confident the route will prove to be a success.

He said: "I am confident but we have to develop awareness that there is a possibility to get to the world from Kent.

"We will also sell Manston to our customers. We will put Manston on the map for our commercial flights and this will push Manston as the door to England."

He said the timetable of flights, the first leaving at 6.35am and the last returning at 9.45pm, means business travellers can take a day trip to Amsterdam for work, adding that this should encourage businesses to set up in Kent and allow local companies

Mr Hourcade said if Manston Airport, which is owned by Infratil and is currently up for sale, changes hands, the KLM flights will make it more attractive.

Charles Buchanan, chief executive at the airport said he will be recruiting 28 more staff members to help with the service.

 $\hat{\mathrm{He}}$ said: "I am thrilled and excited and we could not wish for a better

The plane used for the journeys will be a Fokker 70 jet aircraft which can carry 80 passengers and its first flight will be piloted by Simon King from Kent, who trained with the Red Arrows.

Thanet and east Kent Chamber of Commerce chief executive David Folev said: "Given the considerable savings in time and money to local long haul passengers transiting via Amsterdam, there is every reason to suppose that the arrival of KLM in Manston will stimulate employment in east Kent, reduce costs for exporters and boost tourism throughout the county.'

Thanet North MP Sir Roger Gale said: "People can dream of a third runway at Heathrow, a second runway at Gatwick or Boris Island but all of those dreams are 20 years down the construction line and the demand for more capacity in the south east is immediate.'

WARD CLOSURE: Medway Maritime Hospital was hit by its first case of norovirus earlier than usual this year

Winter sickness bug closes ward as health chiefs issue warnings

By Chrissie Daniels

chrissie.daniels@archant.co.uk

WINTER vomiting bug norovirus is back and causing havoc as health chiefs warn numbers of cases are on the rise.

The highly infectious condition that causes vomiting and diarrhoea, is usually prevelant during the winter months. But this year it seems the virus has begun early and the Health Protection Agency (HPA) has reported seeing a rise in cases.

Earlier this month, Medway Maritime Hospital in Gillingham was forced to close its Will Adams ward when seven people were diagnosed.

A hospital trust spokeswoman said the ward had to remain closed for 72 hours after the last identified case

The ward was then given a 'deep cleanse' before it was reopened.

The HPA said it is hard to tell how many cases of the virus there are each year as many people do not visit their doctors with the symptoms and there is no obligation for it to be reported.

Norovirus is the most common stomach bug in the UK and can affect all ages. As it is so infectious, vulnerable people in care homes, schools and hospitals are particularly at risk.

Dr James Sedgwick, interim director of the Kent Health Protection Unit said: "Outbreaks of norovirus infection are common as winter approaches. The virus spreads rapidly from person to person, especially in institutions such as hospitals, residential care homes and schools.

"In hospitals, it is often necessary to isolate individual cases and closures of wards are common as measures are taken to contain the infection and stop it spreading."

FACTFILE

- The symptoms are vomiting and diarrhoea. Some people have a raised temperature, headaches and aching limbs
- Hospitals are asking people with the virus not to visit loved ones to avoid spreading the infection to vulnerable patients.
- The HPA advises people with norovirus to take time off work until they have been symptomfree for at least 48 hours. It also said not to visit your GP or accident and emergency department as there is no treatment, but to take fluids to avoid dehydration.
- However, if your symptoms appear to worsen call NHS Direct or your GP

New archbishop 'will need all his diplomatic skills' to meet challenges faced by the Church

By Dean Kilpatrick

dean.kilpatrick@archant.co.uk

THE next Archbishop of Canterbury has "good potential for an impossible job", says a leading scholar.

Professor Jeremy Carrette, head of religious studies and head of religion and culture at the University of Kent, said the decision to appoint the Right Reverend Justin Welby was a "creative" one.

Dr Welby, a former oil executive, will take over the reigns of the Church of England when Dr Rowan Williams steps down at the end of the year

Dr Welby, 56, is currently Bishop of Durham. He will be officially enthroned in March.

Prof Carrette said: "He will be the first ever archbishop to have a background in business and the oil industry and will potentially bridge theological ethics and the business world. He will need all his diplomatic skills from the business world and his envoy work to resolve the splits inside the Anglican Church.

"The interesting aspect to watch will be how his evangelical theology will interact with political tensions over gay priests. He is a supporter of women bishops, but his attitude to gay priesthood will be his key challenge and most difficult decision. The issue is whether he seeks to follow the unity of the church over the justice and rights of individual men and women to work without discrimination.

"As head of the worldwide Anglican community the difficulty is also to balance the views of very diverse constituencies in Africa and North America and central to their relationship is the combined politics of poverty and sexuality.

"It is a creative appointment, and someone with good potential for an impossible job."

Certainly he faces no simple task. The Church remains damagingly split over gay priests and women bishops. In addition, there is a more pressing challenge with dwindling congregations amid a shift to an apparently more secular society. Yet the world remains so frequently dictated by religious ideology, and Dr Welby will have bridging the gap between the religions near the top of his agenda.

The Bishop of Dover, Trevor Willmott, will be the archbishop's right-hand man. He looked forward to welcoming Dr Welby.

He said: "He has a powerful vision for the Church in contemporary society and a breadth of experience in the Church and in the world. I can think of no-one better to lead the Anglican Church.

"Bishop Welby has demonstrated a deep commitment to the communities he has served, including those struggling socially and economi-

DR JUSTIN WELBY

THE next archbishop has a fascinating past, tainted by tragedy and with more than its fair share of drama. It is experience which should put him in a strong position for such a demanding role.

Prior to entering the priesthood, he was a successful businessman in the oil industry. But his life was to change in 1983 when a car accident robbed him of his seven-monthold daughter. The father-of-six said the tragedy brought both him and his wife closer to God

As an envoy to some of the most war-torn parts of Africa, he frequently found himself staring down the barrel of a gun prior to neodiations.

He became Dean of Liverpool Cathedral in 2007 and Bishop of Durham in 2011.

cally in Liverpool and Durham."

Dr Welby was one of the frontrunners to become the 105th archbishop when Dr Williams announced his retirement.

Speaking in New Zealand earlier this month, Dr Williams said his successor would need to "preach with a Bible in one hand and a newspaper in the other".

Following last Friday's announcement, Dr Welby said: "I don't think anyone could be more surprised than me at the outcome of this process. To be nominated to Canterbury is overwhelming and astonishing."

THE ARCHBISHOP OF CANTERBURY'S PLACE IN KENT

AS head of the Anglican Church with some 800 million members worldwide, the archbishop spends little time in Kent.

His main office is at Lambeth Palace in London, but he is well aware of his role as leader of the Diocese of Canterbury, which covers 335 churches across Kent.

The Bishop of Dover has the power to make decisions on the archbishop's behalf and keeps him updated.

nd keeps nim updated. The Dean of Canterbury, the Very Reverend Dr Robert Wallis, said: "We very much look forward to welcoming Dr Welby to Canterbury for the enthronement and to both him and his family becoming a part of this community." IN THE FRAME: Set to take on the post at the end of the year, the next Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr Justin Welby, was a successful businessman before joining the Church

Brad and Angelina stay in £3,000-a-week luxury cottage during filming

By Chris Murphy

editorial@kosmedia.co.uk

HOLLYWOOD couple Brad Pitt and Angelina Jolie stayed in a stunning holiday cottage - complete with flatscreen 3D TV, pool table and grand piano – in a sleepy village near Canterbury earlier this month, it has been confirmed.

The superstars and their children were in Kent while Mr Pitt re-shot scenes from upcoming blockbuster zombie movie World War Z.

And while they stayed in a luxurious £3,000a-week converted barn, they also went shopping in the local stores and visited nearby Howletts Wild Animal Park.

The post-apocalyptic movie, based on the bestselling book by Max Brooks, is due for release next summer. Scenes were shot at the Discovery Park in Sandwich - the sprawling former home of US drug giant Pfizer - and a short drive from the village retreat. But the company that rents exclusive holiday cottages in Kent says it only realised who its VIP guests were after the superstars had jetted back to the US.

They stayed at The Treasury in Ickham, a sumptuous barn conversion featuring "breathtaking huge rooms, floor to ceiling windows and

A spokeswoman at Canterbury-based rental firm Mulberry Cottages said: "We have only just found out they were staying with us. It was booked through a production company."

And she joked: "They left it in good condition,

so got their deposit back.'

Some reports suggested Mr Pitt popped along to nearby The Duke William pub, but owner Kate Coleman denies that happened

She said: "They stayed in the village and we had their security stay with us.

"He didn't make an appearance. He was film-

'She [Ms Jolie] went to Littlebourne stores and to the post office to send cards from their children to Father Christmas.

At the post office, shop assistant Fiona Lindsay said: "They came in on Friday. I was working in the shop at the time and I served her in the shop. She was so polite and a really nice person, I was quite shocked - she was so lovely.

"She bought the kids magazines and toys and one packet of sweets each. The children were also polite.

"They made a lot of noise at one point. There were two bodyguards outside and one inside. It was a surreal moment.

Ms Jolie is also said to have taken their sixstrong brood Maddox, Pax, Zahara, Shiloh, Vivienne and Knox, to nearby Howletts in Bekes-

A spokesman at the park was a little shy about their famous visitors, and said: "I'm afraid I'm going to have to give the 'no comment' answer to that one.

The news was broken by entertainment company E! and quotes an insider saying: "The kids all took their fishing rods and bikes and spent a lot of time playing outside while Brad was shooting reshoots for World War Z.

Scenes from the movie had been due to be shot at the site of the Morrisons supermarket near Tunbridge Wells railway station last year. But news leaked and the production company, anxious fans could disrupt filming, changed their plans and instead filmed in Glasgow.

Tory MP feels the heat after another stormy seven days

By Dean Kilpatrick

dean.kilpatrick@archant.co.uk

EOUALITIES minister Helen Grant found herself unable to navigate an easy path out of an increasingly embarrasing political storm this week, as it continued to blow havoc through her constituency office.

Earlier this month, the Maidstone Conservative MP and solicitor was left furiously denying claims by consituency assistant Tony Williams she had altered his employment contract to deny him statutory sick pay.

But it was the issue of selling her Albion Road office in the county town which this week saw one political opponent insist she resign.

It followed a statement issued last week which said that due to her new junior minister position 'local surgery matters... can best be dealt with at her parliamentary office".

This week, however, Mrs Grant issued a revised statement, saying that, contrary to reports, she has "no intention of expecting constituents to come to London for surgery appointments" and that, "she will conduct regular surgeries in Maidstone and Cranbrook as she does now"

A statement said: "Although no decision has been taken at this stage, it is understood that the present office building may be sold. If this is the case, Mrs Grant will have to vacate.

"If the decision is taken not to replace the permanent office, Mrs Grant's surgeries and meetings would still take place in Maidstone on a regular basis, and in the Weald Centre in Cranbrook, as is presently the case, and possibly other centres as needed.

"The remark last week related to the casework arising out of surgery meetings, not the surgeries themselves.'

But it came after an angry response from Kent Green Party chair Stuart Jeffery who stood against Mrs Grant in the 2010 General Election.

He raged: "Maidstone's MP clearly doesn't have time for the people she is supposed to represent. Helen Grant should resign from her ministerial job, and her second job as a solicitor if she still has it, to concentrate on representing the people of Maidstone.'

Mrs Grant's office slammed the comments.

A spokesman said: "Mr Jeffery needs to check his facts before issuing false statements.

With regard the employment row with Mr Williams, her office said no decision had been made about his position.

A statement added: "Mrs Grant's constituency assistant remains an employee and has not been made redundant. We have attempted to consult with Mr Williams, but he said that he has been told he is not well enough to attend a meeting.

Tony Williams confirmed he had been notified of the possibility of losing his position via e-mail, but has not been able to meet with Helen Grant's representatives to discuss the matter further due to poor health.

Traders fret as controversial traffic lights stay

By Dean Kilpatrick

dean.kilpatrick@archant.co.uk

NO changes are to be made to a traffic hotspot in Tunbridge Wells, despite daily chaos and complaints from traders that it is putting people off visiting.

Traffic lights installed on the busy Pembury Road have caused headaches for motorists who find their journey in and out of the town slowed dramatically. The lights at the junction with Blackhurst Lane and Halls Hole Road were introduced as part of the nearby redevelopment of the Skinners' Kent Academy.

A meeting was held between Tunbridge Wells Borough Council's joint transportation board and Kent County Council recently, but despite increasing frustration from drivers, it was agreed for a further six months to "monitor and fine tune" the operation.

During the meeting, it was revealed traffic in the area had dipped by 17 per cent during peak hours since the lights were put in place. But some motorists say it has added 30 minutes on to their journey.

And this has led to some businesses fearing the worst ahead of the Christmas period.

Kent Invicta Chamber of Commerce chief executive Jo James said: "The one thing traders do not need is any bariers, if it's going to take an extra 30 minutes, are they going to go there?

"After the year retailers have had, they need Christmas sales to make up for the rest of the year. I would hope common sense prevails."

The decision to continue to monitor the Pembury Road lights, rather than change it, has also enraged Liberal Democrat councillor David Neve.

He said: "I'm not sure what fine-tuning will do. The situation needs changing, not tweaking. It's causing chaos."

KCC bosses claim residents asked for the new system after a rise in traffic and concerns over safety near the school.

However, bus firm Arriva say the delays on the road have not got any worse.

Commercial manager Matthew Arnold said: "We haven't noticed any improvement or more delays. There are still queues at peak times."

023 9287 0222

SLOW: Traffic lights on Pembury Road are frustrating drivers

01892 522226

Despite the frustrations, many residents are happy with the new system. Those in Sandown Park attended the meeting to defend the lights, claiming it had improved the safety record of the area.

KCC has also backed the system and said alterations will be made to reflect the traffic flow at different times of the day.

Director of highways and transportation, John Burr, said: "Traffic lights are put there to meet the needs of all road users and not just the main road.

"The lights learn the traffic movements and evolve over the process. We are working on it, and we have two other phases to improve the system."

A number of alternatives were thought of at the time, including a roundabout.

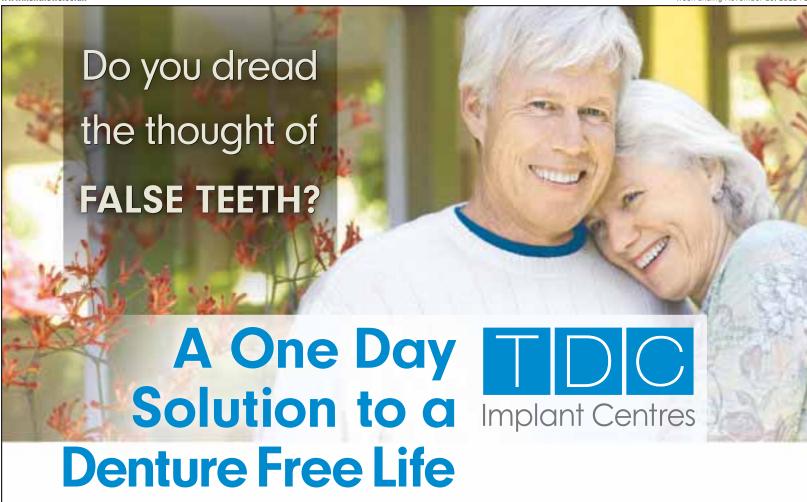

Mr Burr previously admitted: "We are managing the conflicting demands of Pembury Road users and the traffic from Skinners' Kent Academy. Traffic on the main road will be delayed by a red light when it wasn't in the past."

DEMEMBRANCI

Remembering the lost souls

THOUSANDS of people took to the streets last weekend to pay tribute to the fallen as Kent remembered those who paid the ultimate sacrifice in conflicts past and present on Remembrance Sunday.

Among those services taking place was one at the War Memorial in Central Park, Dartford, which saw hundreds attend.

Mayor of Dartford, Ann Allen, said: "I was very privileged and humbled to lead the tributes. I was especially impressed and encouraged by the number of uniformed youth organisations. We must never forget the enormous debt we owe to those who made the supreme sacrifice."

Drink driver is banned

A MOTORIST has been banned from driving for four years after he pleaded guilty to being more than three times over the legal drink drive limit.

He gave police a breath test of 108 microgrammes of alcohol in 100 millilitres of breath.

The legal limit is 35 microgrammes. He was also ordered to pay costs.

VICIOUS: Perry Morris has been jailed for stabbing victim

COURT

Stab thugs in court

A THUG who stabbed a 20-year-old from Erith in the back with a potato peeler and left him bleeding on a railway station, is this week starting a three-year prison sentence.

Perry Morris, 18, pleaded guilty to inflicting grievous bodily harm after the incident at Westgate-on-Sea railway station in June of 2011. It left his victim with punctured lungs.

Two other men involved in the attack - Danny Gray, 17, and Jacey Daly, 18 - both received two-year youth and rehabilitation orders after also pleading guilty.

The victim spent nine days in hospital in Margate for puncture wounds to his back. All three men appeared before Canterbury Crown Court on Tuesday.

Scheme to crack down on HGVs using our rural roads gathers speed as authorities vow action

By Marijke Cox

marijke.cox@archant.co.uk

LORRIES using inappropriate rural routes are being targeted by a new scheme aiming to encourage HGV drivers to be more considerate of communities.

A huge proportion of lorries travelling between the UK and Europe travel through Kent, with some cutting through villages, using small roads and causing damage to property and the highway.

Now a scheme called Lorry Watch has been launched by Kent County Council in conjunction with Kent Police, the Kent Association of Local Councils, and Leeds and Langley parish councils, to target the problem.

The pilot was held on the B2163 Leeds Road which, although subject to a 17-tonne vehicle weight restriction, is often used by large vehicles as a cut through between the A20 and the A274.

Lorry Watch aims to support and empower residents in areas where HGV through traffic presents a major issue.

Residents in Leeds Road were provided with signs to publicise the scheme and warn HGV drivers the project was under way.

Volunteers recorded identifying features of large vehicles on unsuitable roads, which will be passed onto Kent Police.

Operators will then be contacted to find out about routing through the area. This will educate drivers to avoid unsuitable roads, wherever possible, and operators will be encouraged to route their vehicles in a considerate manner.

Kent County Council cabinet member for environment, highways and waste, Bryan Sweetland, said: "We cannot have very large lorries driving along inappropriate small rural roads causing damage to property and the highway.

"Armed with information about pilot scheme aims to reduce the number of heavy goods vehicles using inappropriate country lanes as cut throughs

TAKING

which lorries are using a route and why, we will be able to work towards better routing of lorry traffic. It is essential to protect villages and the Kent countryside, while at the same time, balancing the needs of rural businesses.

"We are looking for community champions to help with the rollout of Lorry Watch."

Chairman of the Kent Association of Local Councils, John Wilson, welcomed the pilot scheme and said they had been campaigning for action to restrict HGVs passing through rural villages for many years.

"Whilst we understand rural businesses' need for large vehicles, it is important their detrimental effects are mitigated.

"Lorry Watch will go a long way to helping our cause, and we look forward to working together with partners and communities, an excellent example of localism in action."

The Freight Transport Association attended the launch of Lorry Watch.

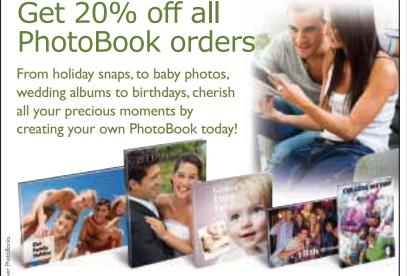

Head of policy for the Freight Transport Association, Natalie Chapman, said: "FTA understands that a large lorry in a small village isn't perfect, and the best routes are not always the ideal routes for everybody, but for many drivers it is their only option.

"We will be looking to work with Kent County Council, the public and FTA members in order to develop appropriate solutions based on the data collected from Lorry Watch.

"We see this project as an opportunity to help people understand the essential role that the logistics industry plays in of our everyday lives."

...while FTA welcomes move to increase HGV speed limits

THE Freight Transport Association has welcomed a government announcement to look at speeding up larger lorries on our roads.

The Tunbridge Wells-based campaign group said the Department for Transport is consulting on raising the speed limit for heavy goods vehicles on single carriageways.

The FTA said it has long backed a speed increase to reduce the speed differential between HGVs and other vehicles.

Roads minister Stephen Hammond ordered the consultation after it was claimed it could boost economic growth.

The current speed limit on single carriageways for HGVs over 7.5t is 40mph, and under the proposals, this could be raised to 45 or 50mph, he said.

The transport department said the freight industry say this will help growth by improving journey times, cutting congestion and reducing costs to business and the cost of goods people buy. It could also reduce the number of collisions caused by other road users overtaking slower moving lorries.

Malcolm Bingham, FTA head

LIMITED: The review would look at raising lorry speed limits on single carriageways of road network management policy, told this paper: "We believe that firstly it will reduce the number of incidents where drivers overtake or attempt to overtake slower moving HGVs who are simply complying with the national speed limit. We know from observations by FTA members, drivers on these roads often become impatient and take unacceptable risk to get past goods vehicles.

"Another issue that has been raised is the acceptability of travelling at higher speed than set by the national speed limits. DfT figures indicate that many drivers may exceed that 40 mph limit on these single carriageway roads. Whilst our members would not want their drivers to disobey any speed limit and many feel it is inappropriate behaviour to do so; it creates a stressful situation when driving a vehicle at a lower speed than others, particularly when other road users try to encourage the HGV to move faster."

And he added: "Legitimising a new speed limit will take away the stress felt by all drivers in these circumstances, which we believe will lead to improved road safety."

The consultation was launched on November 9 and runs until February 1 next year.

Mr Hammond said: "The government is committed to doing everything it can to improve conditions for economic growth. We are consulting on increasing the single carriage way speed limit for certain HGVs after listening to industry experts who say this will boost the UK economy and businesses of all sizes."

The speed limit for smaller HGVs, between 3.5t and 7.5t, is 50mph, and will remain unchanged.

After 'wasting £750,000', controversial regeneration partnership is disbanded

By Chrissie Daniels

chrissie.daniels@archant.co.uk

A CONTROVERSIAL regeneration company set up to transform publicly-owned buildings in Tunbridge Wells has been dissolved, with one politician branding it a collosal waste of taxpavers' money.

David Neve, leader of the Liberal Democrats on the town's borough council, estimates the authority spent £750,000 on the project over the past four years and that nothing has been gained.

The Tunbridge Wells Regeneration Company was a joint 50/50 partnership between Tunbridge Wells Borough Council and developer John Laing.

Set up in December 2008, it was designed to evaluate 38 publicowned sites and examine opportunities to push ahead with civic, retail, commercial, community or residential property opportunities by "redeveloping or regeneration [of] assets".

However, it found itself at the centre of huge controversy over plans to redevelop the civic complex and Town Hall.

The plans were so contentious, they were eventually put on ice after the public backlash.

However, a number of projects did go ahead. It covered Tunbridge Wells, Paddock Wood, Southborough and Cranbrook.

But on Thursday the council confirmed the partnership was at an end and that it would have to pay a settlement cost - but refused to state how much, saying the figure was "commercially sensitive".

The council said the partnership had made "good progress" and prepared proposals for priority sites in nartnershin

Cranbrook and John Street.

PROPOSALS:

complex

properties to

fall under the

remit of the regeneration

A spokesman for Tunbridge Wells Borough Council (TWBC) added: "It also completed evidencebased work for Tunbridge Wells town centre and progressed options on Mount Pleasant Avenue.

"However, despite these steps forward, the economic downturn and subsequent public sector cuts agenda following the Government's last comprehensive spending review, has forced TWBC to reassess its key corporate priorities.

"TWBC was no longer able to consider the regeneration partnership a priority and consequently, it was unable to approve the business case for the sites.

David Jukes, leader of the council, said: "Various things came up that were beyond our control. When this company was set up, we had not hit the banking crisis. Economic times have changed."

Jamie Kerr, head of strategic partnerships at John Laing, added: We are extremely disappointed to have dissolved our partnership with TWBC but with careful consideration to the external factors that have surrounded the scheme, we and TWBC are completely satisfied with our joint decision.

But Mr Neve said the partnership was a waste of time and the council is where it was four years ago.

He said: "All along the Lib Dems said they did not need to start it [the partnership] up. We did not support it. Now they have pulled the plug. It has cost somewhere in the region of £750,000 to the taxpayer and Joe Public has got nothing out of it. It has just been wasted.

"This has taken four leaders of the council to get to this position. We are back where we started."

COUNCIL Q&A

■ Whose decision was it to end the regeneration company partnership?

The decision was a joint one. The shareholders' agreement contained a five-year review built in for both parties to consider. The start of this review was scheduled to begin in June 2013. However with consideration of the economic downturn the council and John Laing agreed to bring the review forward, leading to the joint decision to end the partnership.

■ What happens to the 38 sites?

The council will consider the sites as part of its asset management plan.

Are there any plans for the Town Hall site now?

The Town Hall is a key asset within the council portfolio but there are no plans for the site at present.

Would it have been cheaper to develop individual sites?

On an individual site basis that may have been the case, and the council could have procured separately on 38 occasions.

Setting up the company allowed the council to complete only one procurement process and gain long term efficiencies through working with a development partner. It is accepted that the council will now need to take forward sites on an individual basis.

The work already completed by the company will be used to make this as efficient as possible.

Remarkable discovery finds hall fit for a king

By Dean Kilpatrick

dean.kilpatrick@archant.co.uk

A RARE Anglo-Saxon feasting hall fit for a king, believed to date back to the 6th century, has been uncovered by a team of archaeologists.

Experts from the University of Reading, who worked alongside Kent Archaeological Society and Canterbury Archaeological Trust members, have discovered the historic site in Lyminge, near Folkestone, after a series of excavations.

The hall, which measures 21 metres by 8.5 metres, was found by the team who celebrated the find by marking the outline of the hall in burning candles as the night sky began to emerge.

It's the first such find in more than 30 years, and historians are now trying to piece the history of the village together with hopes the feasting hall will shine a light on the origins of Christianity in Anglo-Saxon England.

Initial findings show the site would have been able to accommodate up to 60 people, and formed part of a building complex used for royal assemblies attended by the king and his armed entourage.

The dig follows previous excavations in Lyminge, which have revealed extensive remains of an Anglo-Saxon monastery, believed to be from between the 7th and 9th century, just inches beneath open areas of the village.

Lecturer in archaeology at the University of Reading, Dr Gabor Thomas, said: "This hall is remarkably well preserved.

DISCOVERY: Archaeologists are being kept busy at the site of the Anglo-Saxon feasting hall. Bottom right is a decorative mount from around 525-575 AD which is among the finds from the dig

"With a ground-plan in excess of 160m square, the hall is comparable in scale and importance to some of the largest Saxon timber halls previously excavated in England at sites such as Yeavering and Cowdery's Down.

"The hall provides an exceedingly rare glimpse of royal accommodation of a type otherwise evoked in the Anglo-Saxon poem Beowulf.

"Such structures were manifestly not 'houses' – they were prestigious buildings used at specific times for a specific purpose such as periodic gatherings involving feasting and gift-giving that reinforced the social bonds between the king and his loyal retainers."

Artefacts discovered at the site included fragments of luxury glass vessels and a rare bridal fitting associated with the Anglo-Saxon warrior elite.

Dr Thomas added: "Nearly all the archaeological information shedding light on Kent around the time of the conversion to Christianity is based upon cemetery finds.

"The site at Lyminge is the first to provide a detailed picture of life at an aristocratic estate centre in Anglo-Saxon Kent during the height of the kingdom's political power at the end of the 6th century."

Evidence also suggests the building was badly damaged by a fire, but it is believed the hall was abandoned as tribes converted to Christianity.

Experts believe there is more to be discovered at the site, and following the "unanticipated" find, more excavations will be carried out next summer.

Stay well in colder weather

Families can take simple steps to keep healthy this winter, says Meradin Peachey, director of public health for Kent

AS WE enter the flu, coughs and colds season, there are easy things you can do to prevent yourself becoming unwell.

You can also help the NHS by asking yourself if your condition is an emergency, a serious injury or illness that needs to be treated at an Accident and Emergency department.

According to an NHS survey, 12 per cent of people admit to using A&E when they knew they didn't need to, such as for tummy bugs, chest infections, coughs and colds. People who do this are likely to have a long wait and take NHS resources away from those who really need them.

Washing your hands regularly and well is the single most important thing you can do to prevent illnesses, such as tummy bugs and flu.

It is particularly important for young children, older people and those who prepare food for them, as the young and elderly are vulnerable to gastroenteritis, including norovirus (winter vomiting disease), which is increasingly common in winter.

Flu can be very serious for some people. Please have a free NHS flu vaccination at your GP practice if you are over 65, have a serious health condition or are pregnant.

Prevent the spread of illness by using tissues to cover your mouth and nose when coughing or sneezing, putting them in a bin and washing your hands well. Remember – catch it, bin it and kill it.

One of the best ways of keeping yourself well during winter is to stay warm.

Cold air can trigger respiratory symptoms, such as wheezing and shortness of breath.

People with serious longterm conditions, such as COPD (chronic obstructive pulmonary disease, which includes chronic bronchitis and emphysema) or heart problems, should try not to go out when the temperature plummets.

Keep your home warm, between 18C (56F) and 21C (70F), and stock up on food and medicines.

Also, take care when you are walking on icy footpaths and wear suitable, well-fitting footwear to minimise your risk of falling.

Sore throats, coughs, colds and flu are caused by viruses and antibiotics have no effect on them. If you are coughing, sneezing, have a blocked nose, sore throat, or a temperature and these are your only symptoms, ask your pharmacist for advice.

If you are being sick or have diarrhoea, drink plenty of water or rehydration fluids (available from pharmacies) to prevent dehydration. Most people

Coughs, colds and flu are caused by viruses and antibiotics have no effect

et better within 48 hours

Please don't visit anyone in hospital or a care home if you feel unwell – a bug which is mild for someone in good health can be dangerous for more vulnerable people.

If you need to see a doctor, contact your GP practice and say if it is urgent. When your practice is closed, if you cannot wait until it re-opens, phone South East Health on 03000 24 24 24 (Kent) or, in Medway, call Medway On Call Care (MedOCC) on 01634 891855 for the out of hours service.

Minor injury units and walkin centres open late, until 8pm or 9pm. Minor injury units can treat, for instance, burns, sprains, cuts and foreign bodies in the eye, nose and ear.

You can also call NHS Direct on 0845 4647 for advice.

Please keep Accident and Emergency departments free for those who really need help.

KOS COMMENT

Pets are not a fad so think before you buy

THE well-known message 'a dog is for life, not just for Christmas' is perhaps more true now than ever before as charities struggle with unprecedented levels of unwanted pets being abandoned by their cash-strapped owners.

Kittens, horses, reptiles and even dogs are been left and while some are given to charities, others are just dumped, left to fend for themselves or, in many cases, perish.

Pets aren't just an accessory that can be shoved in the back of a cupboard when they're no longer wanted. The problem will only get worse if people ignore the long term factors of having a pet, leading to more beautiful animals being dumped.

Has Bigfoot returned?

WE'VE had big cat sightings and reports of ghostly hitchhikers, but perhaps this latest claim is the weirdest yet.

A British Bigfoot living in Kent? Few have seen it. Few will believe it. But it will provide great material for Kent's large selection of spooky tales.

Opinion shows He was too fast hidden agenda for any road

THANK you Dave Mairs (Opinion, last week) for succinctly summing up the situation in our county as regards the attitudes of the powers that be, concerning local comunities trying to prevent unsuitable and unwanted housing developments in their areas.

We in Chilmington Green are fighting to prevent a 5,750 house 'Garden City' from being built on 1,000 acres of farmland in our small hamlet.

This proposed development is in addition to the many thousands of outline planning permissions for properties already granted in Ashford borough, and as yet unbuilt, due to lack of demand.

Every empty piece of land is at risk in this county, readers be vigilant.

Sarah Stanfield. Ashford

WHAT a strange attitude to speeding Terry Hudson of Swalecliffe seems to have.

At the speed he was travelling, [TV's Masterchef presenter] Greg Wallace would have been exceeding the speed limit irrespective of the class of road he was on, and on the A249, where he was observed. there are also gaps in the central reservation to allow traffic to cross, so exceeding the speed limit on that road carries additional risk.

From letters I have had published previously on this issue some readers might have formed the impression I am 'anti-speed'; but far from it.

For example, I believe the speed limit on motorways should be higher, but despite discussions about it, I don't think it's going to happen.

I also believe the case for retaining the 50mph speed limit on the A249 through Jade's Crossing is well made and there is no case for increasing it; and the remainder of it, all the way to the Stockbury roundabout, has various inherent hazards along it that make camera enforcement wholly justified.

If anyone disagrees, just compare the character of this dual carriageway to the A2 London bound. On leaving Kent and entering the London borough of Bexley the speed limit reduces to 50mph and it never goes above that on any road all the way to the M1, despite the fact many of the roads are wider carriageways, far superior in terms of 'risk reduction' than the A249.

So, anyone caught exceeding the speed limit on the latter shouldn't be crying 'foul' and expecting others to come to their defence by claiming the cameras shouldn't be there, but and plead guilty as Mr Wallace chose to do.

Christopher Hudson-Gool, Maidstone

Data paints the actual picture

TERRY Hudson may wish to read the information on our website a little more closely which states that camera vans operate within the signed areas at fixed camera sites.

The fixed camera site on Detling Hill is included in this, and is clearly marked on the camera map.

As stated in the details released to the media, the camera site was installed because there were eight people killed or seriously injured along that stretch of road.

The objective of enforcement is to reduce speeds through the signed area. We do not by law have to put the black and white signs up but we do this to warn motorists of a fixed and/or mobile camera van along particular stretches of road.

Casualties and speeds have been reduced along this stretch of road, and all sites are reviewed annually to ensure they are fit for purpose.

With regards to 'trotting out the usual blurb' - the press details were in relation to an offence and prosecution of 82mph in a 50mph limit and stated the reason the camera was installed in the first place.

If Mr Hudson would like any of this data evidenced, K&MSCP would be happy to oblige and he can email communications@kmscp.org.

Shepway council published what is turning out to be it's disastrous so-called 'parking strategy' last year, we in the Folkestone & Hythe Constituency Labour Party instigated local referenda in the towns of Folkestone and Hythe, which resulted in a staggering 96 per cent majority voting against the introduction of on-street metering.

Blind to this demonstration of public opposition, in September the council went ahead with the introduction of meters in areas of close proximity to Folkestone town centre.

Export trade is unfair for UK

I WOULD like to reply to the letter (KOS 4/1/12) from Chris Smith concerning the live animal export trade.

Really, Mr Smith, your argument is completely illogical. You say you want to see sheep in the fields to make our countryside look "pretty".

Then add that you are happy to see those same sheep shipped abroad for slaughter.

Those of us who demonstrate against this cruel and unnecessary trade, also want to see sheep in our countryside, but we want them to die here too.

At present, they are being shipped to various countries in Europe, where they are then tagged as being the product of that country.

The trade is operated by a Dutch national, the animals are transported by Dutch hauliers, who use our roads for free, and the British economy gains nothing from the trade.

If the sheep were killed in this country the animals would not have to suffer a long and stressful journey before slaughter. More jobs would be created for British workers (eg. British truck drivers, abattoir workers, butchers etc.).

The carcasses would then be stamped as British before being exported, giving due credit to British farmers for a quality product.

Fallon issues blunt warning to banks: 'I'm coming for you'

By Dave Mairs

THE atmosphere was wholly convivial at the breakfast reception organised by the Sevenoaks Town Partnership, but main speaker and local MP Michael Fallon had some harsh words for the country's banks.

Mr Fallon, the Conservative MP for Sevenoaks, who has recently been appointed Minister of State for Business and Enterprise, was responding to a question from this newspaper about how he would force the country's highstreet banks to use the money that had been made available to them to promote economic growth.

There has been widespread revulsion at the manner in which Government money - or, to be precise, taxpayers' money – has been channelled into huge bonuses and the hoarding of excessive reserves rather than into lending to businesses at affordable rates.

Mr Fallon said: "I have warned the major high-street banks that if they don't improve their performance I will publish their lending dealings bank by

"They all tell you a different story it's always someone else. What I will do if it doesn't improve is name and shame the poorest-performing banks.

"I'm absolutely determined to get the money that has been made available to them to small businesses - the taxpayer has been providing this money.

One man who will be delighted with such a firm approach is Roger House, chairman of the Kent branch of the Federation of Small Businesses, who, in a blistering attack this summer, told us: "Millions of pounds has been made available to them [the banks] and money that could have been used to stimulate growth in the economy has gone into bonuses.

"The way these national institutions has behaved is, frankly, frightening.

Back at the business reception, held at the Stag Community Arts Centre on Friday last week, the plaudits for Mr Fallon flowed.

Host and Sevenoaks town mayor Richard Parry told delegates that the Government's current Business Secretary should be wary of a rising star.

"Watch out, Vince Cable, here comes a rival!" he said.

Speaking for the Sevenoaks business community, he continued in a similarly enthusiastic vein: "We are blessed to have such an entrepreneurial MP."

Roddy Hogarth, who holds the portfolio for economic development and partnerships at Sevenoaks District Council, believed that Mr Fallon's promotion would be only good news for the area.

STRONG WORDS: MP Michael Fallon

"We'll be playing on a more level playing field," he said. "The region has not always been at the head of the queue. It has been perceived as affluent and successful, which is correct, but there are things that could be improved.

"We could do more for Swanley, for example, while there are many businesses in rural areas that would benefit from enhanced broadband.'

Delegates paid £10 to be at the event, with the money going to the mayor's chosen charities, Riding For The Disabled Sevenoaks and Age UK Sevenoaks.

Fledgling company set up by ex-Pfizer staff seals £3.8 million research deal to secure its first year

A BIOTECH firm set up by four ex-Pfizer researchers has received a multimillion-pound cash boost just months after launching, writes Marijke Cox.

Canterbury-based Ziarco, which specialises in research for antiinflammatory and anti-allergy medicines, announced a £3.8 million research deal with Pfizer Venture Investments and US group Biotechnology Value Fund LP

President and chief executive of Ziarco. Dr Mike Yeadon, who was former vice-president and chief scientific officer of Pfizer's alert and respiratory research unit, founded the new company with three other ex-Pfizer employees: Steve Liu, who will serve as chief scientist; Lynn Purkins, who leads clinical development; and Arif Shivji, head of business development and development operations.

Dr Yeadon said the company was 'very fortunate" to have secured the deal at such an early stage.

"This deal demonstrates the strength of British science," he said.

'The £3.8m is the initial transaction in what is a £16-17m fund in total. This will provide us with the funding for in excess of one year's operation."

The agreement will focus on developing new and improved antiinflammatory and anti-allergic

According to Ziarco, this research could lead to new methods of treating several major diseases, including asthma, allergic rhinitis, pain and a variety of inflammatory skin conditions.

Dr Yeadon was among hundreds of staff made redundant after Pfizer downsized at the Sandwich site.

"I can only speak for myself and I'm sure for many it was a very upsetting time, but I found it an extremely exciting opportunity," he said. Dr Yeadon and his three colleagues looked at setting up the new company, but it wasn't until this year that it was formally launched.

"Not only are we very fortunate at such an early stage in the company's development to have licensed significant assets from Pfizer and secured funding from BVF and Pfizer Venture Investments to progress development of these innovative therapeutic agents, but we have in place a highly-experienced team which has deep knowledge of these programmes and has the passion and expertise to deliver," he said.

Dr Yeadon said that, while it was unlikely the company would become big quickly, it was possible more staff would be taken on in the future.

"We're already using some of the rich source of local expertise, such as a firm which is making sure our IT is in place,' he said. "So while we're not actually employing new staff at the moment, we are helping by supporting other small businesses.

"Because we're new to running our own small company, we'd love to hear from anyone locally who can help a young business be successful.

"We would welcome and value advice and contributions."

Barbara Dalton, vice-president at venture capital at Pfizer, said the drugs giant was delighted to support the growth of the company.

BVF president Mark Lampert said: "The programmes have the potential to provide new, compelling and differentiated therapeutics to patients with debilitating diseases. It is a privilege to be associated with Ziarco.'

Hi-tech firm picks up small matter of physics award

TOPS: Naneum receives the award

CANTERBURY Innovation Centre is celebrating the accomplishments of tenant company Naneum, which won the prestigious Innovation Award from the Institute of Physics.

The award was in recognition of an instrument that Naneum had developed called a nanoparticle spectrometer.

The device was developed to meet the requirements of the science community for a portable, high-resolution sizing instrument for extremely small particles of matter.

It allows tiny nanoparticle size distributions in the air to be measured quickly and easily and is of crucial benefit to researchers in environmental monitoring and occupational health.

Dr Robert Muir, managing director of Naneum, said: "This award is a great motivation for our young researchers, giving them wide recognition for their groundbreaking work. We hope to build on this achievement to gain greater exposure for our products."

Canterbury Innovation Centre, a business centre that focuses on high-technology businesses, welcomed Naneum as its first tenant company when it opened in November 2009.

Centre manager Jo Clark said: "Naneum is exactly the type of company the Canterbury Innovation Centre was designed to attract.

"IT is working in the highlytechnical field of nanotechnology, is a perfect example of a company graduating from the university's incubator to the innovation centre and has helped the region to retain bright young talent coming out of the university rather than losing them to other counties or even countries."

PROGRAMME

Small businesses centre of attention in new competition

THE Federation of Small Businesses (FSB) and credit-card payment company Streamline have launched a new business-awards programme to promote and celebrate innovation and success among small businesses in Kent.

The FSB Streamline UK Business Awards will also run across another 11 geographical areas around the UK, with area finalists selected to go through to a national final in April 2013.

The Kent and Medway awards are open and businesses are being invited to nominate themselves in four categories:

- Business Innovation
- · Online Business of the Year
- · Micro Business of the Year
- · Young Entrepreneur of the Year

Four businesses (one for each category) will be selected by a panel of independent judges, and one will be selected as winner and receive a cash prize of £500.

The winner, along with the remaining category finalists, will be entered into the national final for their category, with £4,500 up for grabs for each national category-winner.

The judges will then select one overall business as winner of the FSB Streamline UK Business of the Year Award. The winner of this award will receive an additional £5,000 and a business-consultancy package worth a further £5,000 to help them to grow their business.

The Business Innovation and Online Business of the Year awards are open to any UK-registered businesses employing 250 people or fewer, while the Micro Business of the Year award is open to any business employing 10 employees or fewer.

The Young Entrepreneur of the Year award is open to anyone aged 30 or under on Monday, December 31, 2012.

Full details of the entry criteria and how to enter are available at www.fsbstreamlineawards.co.uk/. The closing date for entries is December 31.

The awards have been designed by the FSB and Streamline to raise the profile of small businesses across the UK and to highlight the crucial role they are playing in kick-starting and supporting the UK economy.

Ändrew Aves, FSB development manager for Kent and Medway, said: "As with everything we do, these awards are designed to promote the interests of small businesses and entrepreneurs all over the UK.

"We are really looking forward to using this awards programme as an opportunity to identify and engage with some of the most innovative and successful small business in the UK."

Incoming chairman has right grounding for fellow civil engineers to follow

By Nick Ames

nick.ames@archant.co.uk

CIVIL engineers in Kent have a new chairman after their recent annual general meeting held at Wrotham Heath.

Rob James, who works for infrastructure provider Amey, has been elected to chair the Institution of Civil Engineers (Ice) Kent and East Sussex branch for the next year.

The director of Ice South East England, John Laverty, said: "The Ice South East England's Kent and East Sussex branch is very active on behalf of the 2,000 members we have in those counties, so having a strong chairman is essential.

"Rob James fulfils that role perfectly. He has been involved in the Ice since 2006 and is a former chair of the Kent and East Sussex Ice graduate and student committee as well as having served on the branch committee for the past three years.

"In his professional life he is a principal civil engineer at Amey, where he leads their airport infrastructure team.

"Rob has worked in civil engineering for 15 years, delivering multi-million-pound airport and highway infrastructure projects, including the 2009 Thomas Brassey award-winning A2 Pepperhill to Cobham widening.

"Ice South East England is looking forward to working with him over the next 12 months and is confident he will help promote and develop the work of civil engineers in the county."

James said: "Next year will see the South East Local Enterprise Partnership launch the Local Transport Board and a consultation on the Third Lower Thames Crossing, as well as the ongoing discussions regarding aviation capacity.

"Add these major projects to the continuing work such as the Highway's Agency pinchpoint investment programme and schemes being developed by local authorities and energy, transport, water and waste companies and it is clear there is a lot happening which will involve civil engineers.

"We know that investing in infrastructure not only creates jobs now but brings benefits for the economy for a long time in the future, too, so getting these projects right is essential to get the maximum benefit from such investment."

NEW MAN: Branch officer Elaine Lawford welcomes Rob James to his new role as chairman of Ice

Bright idea to help future electricians test the road ahead

BRIGHT sparks have been given a major opportunity to boost their employability as electricians.

Learning can be greatly accelerated by using real world scenarios in most fields, and MidKent College has devised a new business venture to provide the would-be sparkies with just that.

MKC Aspire Ltd is a division of the college and was set up to enhance the learning experience of students with several new projects - including teaching students how to conduct portable appliance tests (PATs).

And after five weeks of training, students will be paid to carry out PATs across the college's campuses in Medway and Maidstone. Simon Foot, head of faculty for construction and engineering, said: "Part of our commitment to prepare students for the working world is to provide them with real life opportunities such as

"It's great for them because they gain invaluable experience carrying out PATs, while the college also benefits by not having to bring in external companies to carry out the work.

Lecturer Tony Marsh said they will soon be qualified to test televisions, computers and any other electrical appliances found in the workplace. He added: "It's a recognisable skill and a qualification that is convertible to cash.

"It will be invaluable for the students when they are seeking employment because it will give them an edge over other applicants.

Secondary school strate-gic partners include The Abbey School, Faversham, the Isle of Sheppey Academy, Highsted and Borden grammar schools in Sittingbourne and Queen Elizabeth's Grammar School in Faversham.

At a primary level, Minterne Community in Sittingbourne; Queenborough and St Edward's schools on Sheppey; and Bobbing, Iwade, St Peters, Newington and Lower Halstow schools in Sittingbourne, help guide the alliance to meet the needs of local schools.

The STSA works alongside the Department for Education and Canterbury Christ Church University to recruit and train teachers across the alliance schools, for both primary and secondary education, under the government's new Schools Direct programme.

Rupert Prutton, managing director of the STSA, said: "It is very exciting times in education in Swale at the moment.

THE INTERVIEW

Prince Charming says his piece... loud and clear

Joe Bill meets the stammering singing sensation who won all our hearts ahead of his Sleeping Beauty appearance

T was little more than a decade ago that a reality television show grabbed hold of UK viewers and refused to release them. Pop Idol was an early incarnation of what is now The X Factor and it was within this show that one of the most memorable reality moments – one that many would remember for years to come – would occur.

Will versus Gareth... the papers went crazy, there was voting scandal, protests and tears. It was off the back of this battle that Simon Cowell has strengthened his hold on UK primetime TV.

One half of that epic struggle was 17-yearold Gareth Gates, the boy with the voice of an angel with whom Brits fell in love as he struggled to overcome severe speech difficulties to win a record contract.

He lost out to Will Young in the Pop Idol tussle, but his courage and drive meant that producing hits soon became the norm.

But now, more than 10 years on, the Bradford lad is no longer just a pin-up star for teens – he is up in front of the real critics as he makes a career on stage in West End hit shows like Les Miserables and Joseph And The Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat.

There was tension in the air as I walked into our agreed Canterbury hotel and I was introduced not only to Gates, who stars in this winter's Marlowe Theatre panto, but also to Tok, his compatriot from the McGuire Speech Programme.

Gates told me: "We are part of the McGuire speech-therapy programme. It is an ongoing thing. It's something there's no cure for. If an athlete doesn't train, it's the same as if we don't do our breathing exercises — and we will find that affects us speech-wise."

He is also an instructor on the programme and teaches others with a stammer how to progress their speech.

The star, who is playing Prince Charming, is told to slow down by Tok as he continues.

"I have bad days. For instance, I was on Loose Women recently. I have done that show many times before, but for some reason, maybe being busy with shows, being tired, or other factors, I had a really bad interview speech-wise. That knocked my confidence, which is why having Tok around and people from the programme helps me get back to it."

In the UK alone, Gates has sold 3.5 million records, released three albums and had four UK No 1 singles. He had the Smash Hits record of the year in 2002 and the second-best-selling single of the 'Noughties' with Unchained Melody, beaten only by his old rival Will Young with the song Evergreen.

But it is his performances on stage that are now making headlines. Once he is up there, the stammer is no issue.

"Scripts and things like that are a lot easier than general conversation. I just learn the scripts, build up the confidence and then I'm fine on stage.

"For example, I'm in a show called Loserville in Leeds, so that's a really serious acting role. Speech-wise it has been a great challenge, but once I'm rehearsed I'm fine. I am in character... I am not Gareth up there."

He is excited about adding to his list of stage appearances in The Marlowe's Sleeping Beauty this Christmas.

"Ilove panto – it's fun. I've done Les Mis, Joseph, Loserville and am about to go into Legally Blonde with the leading lady [Faye Brookes] from this show, which will be great. But you can't really interact with the audience because it's about telling the story.

"With panto, it's just fun and I am really, really looking forward to it."

Gates has come a long way since his first live audition in front of Cowell and friends, but he's grateful for the opportunity the show gave.

"I was young. I had no real clue as to how huge it was going to be, how my life would change. I'm glad I was that young because I just enjoyed the experience.

"I don't think there has been a final show since that gripped the nation as much as the 'Will versus Gareth' thing. It has given me a great opportunity and I went on to sell millions of records, have several No 1s and live the dream."

And although he made his name through reality TV and appeared in ITV's Dancing On Ice, Gates is not ready to go back down that route just yet.

"I often get asked to go into Big Brother or the jungle. Never say never, but, I mean, the shows that I've done require you to be good at something or to learn a skill and that's what I like.

"I like the challenging aspect as opposed to just being sat in a house."

Bareth Gates will appear in Sleeping Beauty at The Marlowe Theatre, Canterbury, from Friday, November 30, to Sunday, January 20. Phone 01227 787787 or visit www.marlowetheatre.com.

ust to maintain your spot in the busy marketplace that is the Whitstable restaurant trade is an achievement in its own right, and when you're a small family-run restaurant offering Thai food in a district of high-quality fish venues and bustling bistros, you could well be overlooked. But the Shangri La in the high street has been around for a few years now and is always talked about fondly.

And I can see why. Met at the door with the traditional Thai greeting, our waitress for the evening took our coats and showed my guest and I to one of the only free tables in the busy restaurant... not bad for a Tuesday night.

The warm restaurant is decorated with table throws and Thai paintings, while soft music plays in the background. It is a relaxing atmosphere and we were brought an imported Chang beer to start the evening.

To start, I went for a mixed platter of chicken satay, marinated in spiced coconut milk and grilled on a bamboo skewer, a black tiger-prawn wrapped in pastry and deep-fried, as well as pork and prawn blended with herbs and deep-fried on toast and a traditional spring roll.

The dish was served with dipping sauces, including spicy peanut sauce, best with the chicken, and sweet chilli for the prawns.

RESTAURANT REVIEW

Each piece was a delicious light bite and not greasy, with the dipping sauces making it perfect for sharing, but a little variation from the deepfried would be a real benefit.

Resisting the urge to go for my favourite Thai green curry, for the main course I chose the lamb panang. The dish was cooked in coconut milk, hot peppers and kaflir lime leaves. The curry was fresh and light and included roasted cashew nuts. The chillis warmed the dish significantly towards the end but to a comfortable level. You can request extra spice with each dish.

The diced lamb was tender and melted in the mouth... perfect. My guest went for the more fruity and sweet lamb mango curry, which included chunks of the fresh fruit, green cardomoms and star anise for an aniseed flavour.

For our side dishes we went for the egg-fried rice, which arrived in a pretty pot of Thai china and a pad thai dish that included rice noodles with red onion, beansprouts, spring onions and crushed cashews. The pad thai was a little overbearing in flavour and when I go again I won't choose it. The portion sizes were spot on and we were left without feeling we needed more.

The dessert menu is very basic and comprises mainly fruit and ice-creams and sorbets, so I tried my guest's coconut-and-mango concoction.

We ate three good courses, with side dishes, had a couple of drinks and came out having spent a reasonable £49.70. The service was excellent and the food good—it is actually very easy to see why the Shangri La can compete.

New chef will unlock secret of the garden

THE Secret Garden restaurant at Mersham-le-Hatch has new head chef.

Stephen Piddock brings 20 years' experience from top hotels and restaurants in the area.

The 36-year-old now lives in Folkestone but grew up on Romney Marsh before beginning his training in London.

Having worked in Australia as well as Kent's Chilston Park, The Bell Inn at Sandwich and the Hythe Imperial, Piddock said: "I am passionate about using local produce.

"We will be creating dishes to get the best out of those ingredients and increasing production in the restaurant's one-acre walled garden for use by the kitchen."

Cappuccino soup sets new style at The Snail

Boogie the night away and savour the menu at Banks

BANKS is the longest-standing independent restaurant in Maidstone.

The venue offers the best of both worlds – a contemporary bar with the feel and atmosphere of a country pub all in the middle of the town centre. Food is served Monday to Saturday, from 10.30am to 4pm, with a selection of freshlyprepared traditional meals and snacks, as well as an ever-changing list of specials that the chefs love to create.

There also regular fresh fish dishes on the menu fromThursday to Saturday. At the weekend, Banks is transformed into a lively, quirky and exciting bar, with two main areas and completed by a cocktail bar.

The group is renowned in Maidstone for putting on amazing events in the huge beer garden, including a selection of house DJs from Carl Cox to Jamie Jones. The Banks team is a close-knit, small group that prides itself on maintaining the outstanding reputation it worked hard for over the years

More recently, Banks hosted KISS FM events, which have been a sell-out every time. On top of these events, which target a younger market, Banks is home of the Warehouse Reunion, Maidstone's hit 80s club, giving older customers the chance to reminisce on the old times and dance the night away.

The Big Sunday Lunch is a one-off Sunday roast, served in the Banks restaurant on Sunday, November 25. It's a perfect chance for customers to catch up with old friends, enjoy some delicious home-cooked food and relax.

The team wanted to give regular customers a civilised afternoon of hearty food and relaxation with a menu of freshly-cooked traditional English roast of your choice with all the trimmings followed by a selection of mouthwatering desserts.

Customers will have the chance to also plan their outfits for the big event coming up the following week as the Warehouse Reunion night celebrates its first birthday on Saturday, December 1.

The Banks bar accommodates the biggest beer garden in Maidstone, stretching out the back of the venue. It is used to its full potential in the summer and utilised as a space for a heated marquee in the winter and Christmas period, where the team will host festive corporate functions

A delicious Christmas at the Waggon

IT'S going to be a real cracker of a Christmas this year with the delicious menu at the Waggon

The Waggon is a well-run family pub with good food, good wines and beers and a very friendly, relaxed atmosphere.

There is always plenty going on at the Waggon, with themed nights, guizzes, charity events and live music. Families are always welcome and in the pub's big family-friendly garden there is even a mini farm featuring chickens, guinea pigs, rabbits and the star of the show, Crackling the miniature pig.

Proprietor Emma Pearson said: "We do not try to be anything more than what we already are a warm and friendly country pub serving real food and drink, selected, prepared and served to you by our friendly team.

From Thursday, November 29, to Sunday,

December 23, the Waggon will offer its pre-Christmas menu priced at £22.95 per person.

That price includes a starter, a main course and a dessert from an excellent range of puddings, including traditional Christmas pudding, chocolate brownies, tasty French apple tart or, for the ultra-sweet-lovers out there, the raspberry-and-white chocolate cheesecake brûlée. But the choice is up to you!

An example of the menu could include a starter from the tomato-and-basil soup, the deep-fried Brie, the duck-and-orange pâté or even the prawn-and-crayfish salad.

For the main course you could go with the traditional roast turkey or roast topside of Scottish beef with all the vegetables and trimmings For something a little different, try the mushroom-and-chestnut-stuffed plaice or the vegetarian stuffed red peppers. ■ Waggon at Hale

Joan's star still shines bright

By Joe Bill

joe.bill@archant.co..uk

IN 1973, Joan Armatrading was voted Outstanding New Artist in a critics' poll in trade magazine Music Week.

The singer-songwriter has come along way since her birth in the West Indies and upbringing in Birmingham, bagging three Grammy nominations, two Brit nominations and a coveted Ivor Novello Award.

And now, with the release her 20th studio album, Starlight, Armatrading returns to Kent with a new tour, and there is no sign of her slowing down.

"I'm not always sure where I've been - there have been so many times before. I still tour after every album," she said.

"I love to write - it is my passion, it is my favourite thing - and once I have written a song I want people to hear it in a live situation.

"When you're travelling, it can be incredibly tiring, but once you get out on to the stage, no matter how tired you've felt, and if the audience are into it, the tiredness vanishes and you're as fresh as a daisy.

"I always do a combination of old and new songs – it would be unfair to everybody if I just played my new album."

The 61-year-old is keen to keep her tours and live appearances simple for her fans and herself.

"They will hear new things from Starlight, but they will hear lots of songs they've known for a long time, and it's the audience's reaction to that which keeps touring fresh.

a toothbrush and obviously a change of clothes. Every day is in a different city, so you don't want to be having a big suitcase to unpack every day.

"My very first tour, I had a bag that was the size of a doctor's bag for the three months in America - and that is all I took.'

In musical terms, Armatrading has achieved what most performers dream of. She has played with some of the finest musicians around. received countless gold and platinum discs, figured in VH1's Top 100 of The Most Influential Women In Rock and been honoured by The Queen in receiving an MBE.

Her prolific song-writing continues, but the musican has her very own way of creating tracks, including her new record, Starlight.

"It's part of a trilogy of blues, rock and jazz albums I started in 2007. This one is the final of the three, so it has a huge jazz influence on the CD. I don't actually listen to a lot of stuff. I'm aware of what music is going on, but I don't sit down and listen to a load of jazz before writing -I

"Because I'm touring, I won't be writing. I can't write on tour - it doesn't work for me. But I will have lots of ideas that I will make a note of. When I finish a tour, I'm in the mood to write and I have that time on my own. I haven't got to travel or do interviews or sound checks - I can just get on with it."

Her music from the past 40 years remains as popular with fans today as when it was first released, especially her smash hit Love And Afthat got me known

"It doesn't matter whether I'm in Japan or Australia, that single is requested. I have sung it at every single gig on every single tour I have ever done. There are also always requests for The Weakness In Me. It's a toss-up between those two as to which gets the biggest applause.

HOMES

New website clicks with both agents and sellers

AN estate-agency comparison website launched by Folkestone business netanagent.com has already outperformed expectations in its month.

netanagent.com allows anyone with a property to sell or let to post their details free of charge and wait for tailored quotes to be sent back from interested estate agencies.

The property-owner can then make an informed choice and pick the best deal.

Since the launch, the website has been inundated with requests, both from those with properties to sell or let, and from estate agencies wishing to be listed on the site.

The website is attracting business from across England and is currently listing more than £17 million of property.

In the last five weeks, 27,500 visitors have been to the site outperforming all predicted expectations.

Alex Thorpe, managing director of netanagent.com, said: "We're delighted with the feedback from both estate agents and those that have instructed an agent through the site so far.

"Our aim was to turn the property-selling or letting process on its head as for the first time estate agents have to demonstrate up front what exactly they will be charging and, more importantly, the value they'll add to the sales process.

"We've already seen a raft of competitive offers on the table for the homeowner to pick from and we're hoping this will lead to a shake-up of the market.

"What we're finding is that people are saving significant amounts of money by using this website. For example, one user was coming to the end of his contract with an existing estate agent. By using our site, he managed to save £1,200 on the sale of a property worth £75,000 - which is the equivalent of the moving fees.

"We're very pleased with the progress to date - we're striking a balance between providing property-owners with the best deal and providing agents with goodquality leads and a stronger online presence. We're planning to continue our fast expansion for the remainder of this year and into next.'

Opportunities from Green Deal are highlighted during seminar

By Nick Ames

nick.ames@archant.co.uk

A SEMINAR hosted by the Country Land And Business Association has highlighted to both homeowners and those involved in the letting market the challenges ahead following Government housing-policy developments and the launch of the Green Deal in October.

A Government report published earlier this year highlighted the need to increase the provision of let housing being built or financed by the private sector - yet many who attempt to venture down that route find themselves frustrated by rules and regulations and by unhelpful tax regimes and difficulties obtaining finance.

The Country Land And Business Association (CLA) says it is offering members and non-members alike the chance to explore the rationale and process behind the Green Deal as well as the threats and opportunities that attendees could experience in delivering high-quality housing in the 21st century.

At the seminar, at the Best Western Donnington Manor Hotel in Sevenoaks, CLA national housing adviser Danielle Troop, who has previously worked on housing-led regeneration and affordable housing delivery, outlined the political background to the rural-housing agenda

A CHANGING FACE: Recent Government housing-policy changes have opened up a number of opportunites for those who are interested in entering the lettings sector and the CLA's policy objectives with a breakdown of the Housing Health and Safety Rating System (HHSRS), giving attendees pointers for the future.

CLA regional surveyor Tim Broomhead said: "Whether you are a landlord or manager of rural housing, this seminar will help you to take advantage of the recent changes. We welcome the opportunity to host these interactive seminars to provide the public with the necessary information to succeed with their existing and future stock.'

The recently-issued CLA Housing Policy for 2013 that focuses on new housing across all tenures was also discussed.

JAGUAR hasn't made a habit of estate cars.

Apart from a few one-offs and concepts, the marque's first production model was the X-Type Estate of 2004, which was easily better looking than the tubby saloon.

But Jaguar buffs will tell you that estate still doesn't count, as the whole X-Type project was based on a Ford Mondeo.

The new Jaguar XF Sportbrake, on the other hand, looks like a Jag thoroughbred.

Based on Jaguar's best-seller, the glamorous XF saloon, it is both a practical load-lugger and rakish lifestyle estate for those who like the country-set image. This apparent contradiction has been achieved by a sweeping rear roofline made to look even more dramatic by its divergence from the arc of the rearmost side window, and by a slanting tailgate.

Inside, though, are fully-folding rear seats and a nicely squared-off load space – it should pass the antique-dealer's chest-of-drawers test.

Self-levelling rear suspension as standard is also testament to Jaguar's desire that this 'estate of grace, space and pace' – to borrow a famous Jaguar slogan of the 1950s and 1960s – should be taken seriously as a practical as well as stylish choice.

Two early Sportbrake examples gave the new model extra kudos, too, as support cars to victorious UK cycling hero Bradley Wiggins and Team Sky in the Tour de France earlier this year.

After this teasing build-up, though, the car is now available to buy, priced from a not-unreasonable £31,940.

Targeted primarily at discerning companycar user-choosers, where it will attack the BMW 5 series Touring, Audi A6 Avant and new Mercedes-Benz CLS Sporting Brake particularly, the Sportbrake launches with diesel power only.

And the headline here is replacement of the previous 190PS (187bhp) four-cylinder 2.2-litre unit by two derivatives offering 163PS (161) or 200PS (197) with CO2 emissions from just 135g/km and combined economy from 55.4mpg. The Sportbrake will also be available with a 3.0-litre turbocharged V6 diesel (from £35,855) with either 240PS (237) or 275PS (271) outputs.

An eight-speed auto with emissions and fuelsaving Stop/Start and manual paddleshifts is now standard on all XFs, the arrival of the new estate version coinciding with an upgrade of powertrains and other details for the whole XF range – the car that has really put Jaguar back on the map with customers.

Sportbrake performance ranges from 0-60mph in 9.8 seconds for the 163PS version to 5.9 seconds for the 275PS V6 – the V6 versions are likely to be most sought after by private buyers, while the fleet sector will like the more company-car-tax-efficient 2.2 models.

The XF range now also gets a British Meridian sound system, replacing fellow UK premium audio brand Bowers and Wilkins.

DON'T LIKE

... the wait for such a stylish yet practical alternative to the XF saloon, but Jaguar lacks the development resources of German rivals.

■ NOT SURE

... it can rival the volumes of Audi, BMW and Merc estates, but the Germans will worry about another star turn from the resurgent Brit brand.

REALLY LIKE

... how the Sportbrake is almost a stand-alone model, taking the best of the XF saloon but creating an elegant car to view in isolation.

Go for a GT86... Toyota out to prove that you only live once

By Steve Loader

editorial@kosmedia.co.uk

TOYOTA was worrying me...

Having made its name with well-equipped, reliable smaller cars, it always used to glam up its image with fast, affordable halo models like the Celica, Supra and 1980s mid-engine MR2.

But once the Japanese car giant caught the hybrid bug, every spare yen of research and development cash seemed to pour into laudable but dull hybrids until, finally, management recognised that excitement was missing.

Cue this summer's GT86, a cheap yet stun-

Cue this summer's GT86, a cheap yet stunning sports car that deliberately echoes an even older image-maker, the 1960s 2000GT — Toyota's E-Type' immortalised by a one-off convertible version made for the James Bond film You Only Live Twice.

The GT86 has the same long nose, low-slung window line and miniscule rear quarterpane as the 2000GT, and Toyota shrewdly kept the car simple and shared development with Subaru, which badly needed a halo car, too, and has ties with Toyota.

Toyota supplied design leadership and new direct petrol-injection technology, which contributed to the car's high non-turbocharged 197bhp output from two litres.

Subaru, which markets the car as the BRZ, supplied the platform and one of its trademark boxer (horizontally-opposed) engines, allowing an ultra-low profile and superb rear-wheel-drive balance, encouraging keen drivers to gently drift the back end out when cornering with traction control off.

Badges on the GT86 wings, showing two horizontal pistons and four drifting wheels, sum up this ability and the car's engine. It's the sort of affordable sporting fun previously owned by the Mazda MX-5 — which will soon have a GT86 crop-top to contend with as well.

There's just one GT86 model (£24,995) for now, though, unless you want the auto (why?)

TOYOTA GT86: PRICE £24,995

FAST AND for an additional £1,500, and it looks as retro inside as out, with a modest yet sturdy dashboard and trimming that is part of its charm.

sure to attract

There are nice alloy-finish pedals, though, even if you wonder why Toyota didn't throw in red seatbelts. The only concession to the modern age is a central media/sat-nav screen.

There's a fashionable and retro stop/start engine button, of course, although there is a space for a conventional steering-column key, suggesting that an even cheaper version could arrive that might really clean up in this sector.

Cabin stowage is typically minimalist for a sports car, but there's an uncharacteristically good boot even if the aperture is narrow.

The front seats are well shaped, with two heavily-bucketed ones in the back; you could carry four adults at a pinch, but the GT86 is more a 2+2 while still being more practical than most other – more expensive – sports cars I could mention.

But this is all froth compared with the driving experience, which is top-notch – especially at this price, with Toyota's promise of reliability and low maintenance backed by a five-vear/100,000-mile warranty.

There have been whinges that the engine is neither turbocharged nor sounds beefy enough, and is slow out of the blocks, but that's probably as much for PR reasons – a gas-guzzling monster would jar with Toyota's expensively-won image as an eco champion.

Anyway, I like the engine and its sweet revving once into its stride above 4,000 revs. It will hit 62mph in 7.6 seconds, but manoeuvrability is more key to the car's appeal, helped by wheels and tyres resembling a Toyota Prius hybrid – beefing them up would surely lower the GT86's fun factor. The six-speed gearbox can be flicked from cog to cog quickly while allowing economical motorway cruising, for it's a useable sports car rather than a holidays-and-high-days beast.

So, if you always promised yourself a sports car one day...

Fleet appeal of new Mazda6

NEW eco-friendly Skyactiv technology embedded in the new Mazda6, due in January, is expected to create one of the slowest-depreciating models in the fleet sector, say CAP monitor valution experts.

Residual values for one of the likely stars of the range, the £23,140 Mazda6 2.2 150ps SE-L Nav, are expected to be 32 per cent of original price.

Hybrid aiming even higher

LEXUS has created a super executive hybrid with the launch of the new high-spec, high-value CT200h Advance (£24,495).

Standard kit includes sat-nav, reversing camera, auto-dimming rear-view mirror, rain-sensing wipers, folding door mirrors, cruise-control and the brand's new alternative to leather upholstery called Tahara, all for a premium of just £500 over the existing CT200h SE model.

Price is finally right for VXR

COULD this be take-off for the muscular Vauxhall Insignia VXR – a great sporting car hamstrung by buyers' fears of future depreciation?

The old car has been replaced by the faster (by 15mph with a 170mph maximum) yet cheaper (almost £4,000 at £29,995) Insignia VXR SuperSport.

It looks like the sort of value to turn penny-pinchers into liberated VXR-buyers.

VAUXHALL will soon launch its most interesting car for a while, and that's not to say recent output has been dull.

But the new Adam, priced from £11,255 and due early in 2013, shows the UK arm of General Motors not only attacking the city-car segment for the first time but also tilting at the fashion niche owned by the BMW Mini, Fiat 500 and Citroën DS3.

And while it lacks the retro image of the first two, it still begs to be noticed.

Why Adam? Well, cars we know as Vauxhalls appear elsewhere in Europe branded as Opel of Germany, founded by Adam Opel. But if Brits can't really identify with the new car's name, we can take comfort from a few things.

Firstly, there was never a 'Mr Vauxhall', so,

Eve of new Adam approaches

despite an early model called the Prince Henry – and 'Henry' would never do for this car's target customers – that avenue is closed.

Secondly, the British designer credited with injecting style into the Vauxhall/Opel line-up these days, notably with the latest Astra, the Insignia and now the Adam, is a Brit called Mark Adams – the guy deserves the namecheck via this new car.

The Adam has a big job, though, lifting Vauxhall's fashionability and premium appeal as the marque tries to distance itself from competent and affordable Korean-built cars from its own Chevrolet GM stablemate and Hyundai/Kia while also moving upmarket only to find marques like BMW and Audi pushing downmarket with cars like the latest 1 Series and A1 respectively.

On its side, the Adam has distinctive looks and a 'floating roof' visual device that allows a distinct two-tone paint treatment – particularly effective on the Mini and DS3.

For customisation and image are everything in this sector and the Adam has specials up its sleeve, such as a wild array of alloy wheels, many of which can be further colour-personalised.

There is also an interior headliner that astronomer Patrick Moore would love. It twinkles like the sky at night – for the moment, it's the sort of thing you can only have on a Roller or from a bespoke custom shop.

The Adam's permutations are endless, though, and to help guide the customers' desires initially there are three cleverly-named trim levels from which buyers can then spin, at a price, their own imaginative take.

These are: Jam, for the youngest buyers; Glam, for more discerning females; and then Slam, for a a sportier look and probably more for the boys.

I reckon they may also need to slot in a snarling VXR version to give the range a halo car like the Mini Cooper S.

For now, though, the Adam won't be burning up the streets with a crowd-pleasing economy-orientated spread of three petrol powertrains: a 69bhp 1.2-litre, or 86 or 99bhp 1.4-litre.

What makes a hatchback less predictable and more individual? Is it having a higher specification and level of finish than you might expect from a much larger car? Is it a car that's more economical and efficient? A car full of the latest technology that not only improves life, but sometimes saves it? Or is it simply a car that's fun to drive but not at your passengers' expense? The answer is it's all of these things but most importantly it's a car that's designed and built around you. Main Servicing

Protecting car reliability and value needs care

IT'S hard to imagine in tough economic times, but cars represent better value now than in the past.

They are also more reliable and come with more equipment, but what hasn't changed is the need to keep up the service schedule and ensure repairs are carried out swiftly and competently.

The best guarantee used to be a full main dealer service history, a reassuring record that everything required for the manufacturer's warranty had been carried out.

But this became seen as a restrictive practice and 2002 EU legislation made it illegal for manufacturers to insist on cars being maintained by their franchise network to keep the guarantee intact.

It also meant that manufacturers had to make vehicle diagnostics information – crucial with increasingly-sophisticated vehicles – specialist tools and updates available to independent garages and servicing centres.

Nevertheless, many car-buyers still prefer main dealer franchising and also think it is the best way to protect the part-exchange or second-hand value of the car, since used-car-buyers will usually pay a premium for a full main dealer service history on sophisticated models like the Peugeot 508.

Sceptics argue, though, that this perceived

KEEPING ON TRACK: Don't cut corners on servicing and care for sophisticated modern cars like the Citroen DS5 (left) Hybrid 5 and the Porsche Cayenne premium is wiped out by paying higher main dealer service costs.

Maybe, but manufacturers and their maindealer networks have raised their game since the 2002 legislation. Indeed, with car sales and profits squeezed during the economic downturn, dealers have become more competitive on servicing, created cost-effective service plans, enhanced customer service and specialised in ancillaries like tyres and exhausts – normally the preserve of the quick-fit centres.

They have also banked on the perception that only a main dealer's service technicians can know its cars as well they do.

And happy service customers keep coming back, seeing the latest new car models on the showroom floor – one day soon, they may be buying again.

Dealer service history – is it worth it?

ONCE you know the jargon of used-car classified ads, the importance of DSH, MDSH and FMDSH becomes clear.

For those yet to be initiated, they are all variations on the theme 'dealer service history', with FMDSH being the gold standard – full main dealer service history.

Does it matter? Well, a lot of new-car-buyers think it does because it protects future part-exchange or second-hand values of their motor, since used-car-buyers are usually happy to pay a premium for a complete and unblemished main dealer service history.

Critics might argue: "Ah, but you wiped out that perceived premium by paying more for your main dealer servicing while you owned the car."

It's a point, but having seen sales profits squeezed ever more tightly, many dealers have chosen to market servicing more aggressively.

They ve become more cost-effective, enhanced customer service, introduced competitive pricing on items like tyres – normally the preserve of the quick-fit centres – and encouraged the perception that only a main dealer's service technicians can know its cars as well they do.

And dealers know that happy service customers come back, bringing immediate revenue and also seeing the latest models on the showroom floor – they may, of course, buy again.

Third-party sources also support the wisdom of keeping your new car in the franchise family.

Media motoring guru Honest John really was honest with a BMW-owner who considered using an independent garage to maintain his car.

"After independent servicing, you will get a lower part-ex price from a BMW-dealer and it will go to auction.

"If the car has a full dealer service history and is in retail condition, you will get a higher price. The difference will normally be worth more than you save on maintenance," he said.

Motor Trade Insider website polled several professional motor-traders who collectively buy 5,000 cars per year for main dealers.

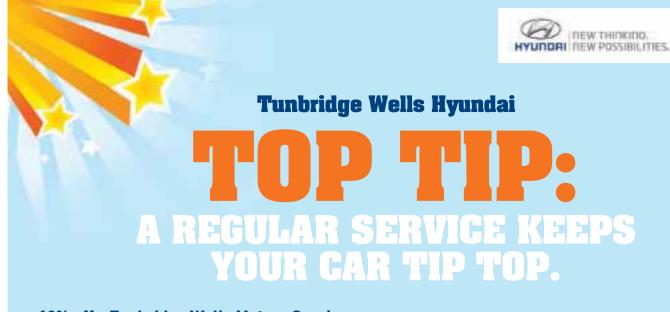

The simple question was: "If you were asked to bid on a three-year-old variant of one of your models with average mileage and spec, would you value it any less if it had three KwikFit/Halfords/Tesco etc stamps against three stamps from the franchise representing the car?"

The answer? "The results in some cases were staggering: the Ford- and VW-buyers said they would value a car like this £800-£1,000 less.

"The Jaguar-buyer said it would need to be £1,500 to £2,000 less and, amazingly, the BMW and Mercedes boys said they probably just wouldn't want to buy it!"

EXTRAS: If your vehicle - like this Mercedes-Benz Sprinter or Mitsubishi L200 - needs a replacement part, your main dealer can be just as cheap as a fast-fit centre

Main dealers hit back at quick fit

SPECIALIST 'quick/fast-fit' centres have boomed as drivers try to save money on exhausts, tyres, batteries, clutches, shock-absorbers and routine services, plus the annual MOT.

But main dealers have not been sitting idle, reckoning that if car-owners are still using their service bays, then they won't mind considering realistic deals on tyres and exhausts, for instance, to ensure a time-saving one-stop-shop purchase.

Using the main dealer also guarantees that only genuine manufacturers' parts are used, bringing the confidence of additional quality and reliability and the knowledge that this will be logged on the dealer/manufacturer database.

And that same guarantee, plus realistic pricing, has also encouraged owners to have bodyshop repairs done either by the franchise's own panel-beaters and paintshop or one that gets its seal of approval.

Main dealers have also borrowed from their quick-fit rivals by offering menu pricing; this means that, like dining out, a customer can decide what he wants and knows in advance what it will cost — avoiding motoring indigestion when the bill is presented.

Some dealers will even let you spread the cost via finance or servicing schemes covering several years.

Others may also offer a loyalty scheme with a tariff of cheaper prices to keep owners of older and lower-value models on their books rather than see them defect to the non-franchised sector simply because they feel their car is no longer worth top servicing prices.

Another trick borrowed from the quick-fit companies is longer working hours at main-dealer service centres; dealers know many customers want to drop off their car early on their way to work and then pick it up at the end of the day – a courtesy car may even be offered.

Bookings can often be made centrally, too, so that customers living midway between two franchised dealers within the same group can pick the most convenient service slots available.

Higher-spec technicians needed for hi-spec cars

INCREASINGLY complex vehicles and a shortage of skills in the jobs market has made the main-dealer technician a hugely important part of the site's servicing operation.

Sarah Sillars, executive chair of the trade's Institute of the Motor Industry (IMI), said: "The rate of technological change in the automotive industry is currently being driven by competition, consumer demands and regulation.

"This is creating a constant requirement for businesses to anticipate change and invest in training to help staff keep pace with developments."

The body has also developed a Consumer Code of Practice system to promote and maintain professional standards, while its sister organisation, the Society of Motor Manufacturers and Traders (SMMT), published a paper, Strengthening Skills For A Growing Economy, calling on the Government to help feed demand for the necessary skill sets and ease unemployment at the same time.

Most motor-manufacturers are proactive in finding and promoting technicians within dealership networks. Many are then sent to special sites and plants run by the companies in the UK and abroad to test their skills and attain the highest qualifications.

Just as we have an unrivalled range of commercial Vehicles to choose from, Mercedes-Benz is also delighted to introduce Van Service Care, which provides you with more flexible and affordable options for servicing either your Vito or Sprinter Van at a Mercedes-Benz Official Workshop.

MONEY MATTERS:

Hyundai has raised the stakes on warranties – models like the new generation i30, left, come with a five-year/100,000-mile guarantee, but make sure you keep the service schedule up to date to maintain the warranty on the family workhorse like this Nissan Qasqhai or the new Peugeot 208

Warranty wars are worth fighting for

NEW cars are covered by a warranty. For years, the standard was three years and/or 60,000 miles, but a recent outbreak of 'warranty wars' between carmakers has seen both the years and mileages increase.

It's a good reason for car-buyers to shop around, but some of the new deals also reinforce the old adage to check the small print.

This will confirm exactly what the manufacturer will and will not pay for if the car breaks down within the agreed time period or mileage.

And this makes it imperative that the carowner also sticks to the rules by keeping the vehicle serviced according to the warranty and also takes note of and acts upon any recall notices for unforeseen faults and problems. Some marques are more lenient about late servicing than others, but a common pitfall is to have the car serviced only by mileage, when most manufacturers now insist that the car is serviced annually if the required miles are not being covered. You don't have to use a franchised dealer for servicing – this stipulation was thrown out by EU legislation in 2002 – but do check for caveats in any case.

0800 146 039 www.pomphreys.co.uk

Be aware also that some marques offer the chance to extend the warranty for a reasonable cost or will 'wind back' the warranty clock to start again if you buy an approved used example from one of their dealers – not a bad option

Be sure to have a care for your car... or else

CARS have leapt ahead in reliability, comfort and driving pleasure in just a few years, but their sophistication means that upholding reliability, economy and safety is now best left to the professionals.

But this costs, so owners often ignore problems for too long or stretch the servicing schedule beyond the recommended limit, perhaps endangering the occupants and certainly undermining the warranty and provenance of the vehicle when they come to sell.

So, follow these tips:

- Maintain the service record to the letter at the correct mileages or annually and make sure the servicing book is stamped up, although many marques have centralised digital records so that a car's servicing record is always available if required.
- Read the warranty document thoroughly to ensure there are no possible pitfalls to endanger your guarantee.
- Act on recalls from the manufacturer for checks or replacements, even if they do not relate specifically to safety – it will help maintain the warranty and future saleability of the car
- Don't rely on the MOT as insurance for the car's safety and reliability, even if has just passed with flying colours – problems can arise at any time and you should get them checked as soon as possible.

- Check lights regularly for safety and legality. Get used to 'lighting up' in the garage or when you are nosed in or backed up to a wall
- Check tyres including the spare monthly, and that includes the correct pressures as listed in the handbook or the sticker often placed on the driver's side door-frame. Though the legal tread depth is 1.6mm, replace at 2mm, especially in winter when icy and wet conditions compromise grip.
- Keep oil, windscreen-washer, coolant, powersteering, clutch and brake-fluid levels topped up without over-filling, and make those checks on level ground. Don't wait for warning lights to come on.
- Replace wiper-blades. There's no point in keeping the washer topped up if blades are worn or split. But if the windscreen is covered with bugs and grease, don't expect the washer and wipers to do the job for you – use a spray and elbow grease.
- Shop around for servicing. Even if you are committed to main-dealer servicing, you don't have to use the one where you bought the car – some are better on pricing and customer service than others.

ATTENTION: New cars like the stylish but practical Citroën C3 Picasso, pictured above, and new Seat Ibiza Cupra hot-hatch are more reliable and safer than ever before, but they still need looking after
